off continuing German counterattacks against their positions on Monte Butaglia and Monte Casella, heights dominating the highway to Imola, junction point on the Bologna-Rimini-Modena lateral supply route for the Nazis.

While the main Allied drive at the center is down the highway through Monghidoro, other United States forces have reached Casoli di Romagna, a village sixteen miles south of Bologna and three miles east of the highway.

Brazilian troops, on the western flank of the Allied line, moved ahead despite bad weather and stiff enemy resistance and captured Monte Nona.

American Naval Chiefs Plan New Attacks on Japs

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor

A meeting of America's naval chiefs to plan new moves against Japan was officially disclosed by the navy yesterday.

Shortly after radio Tokyo reported a surprise Japanese invasion of the China coast designed to complete Nippon's seal against United States landings on Eastern China.

Oil Center Bombed

The blasting of one of Japan's most important oil sources—Balkpapan on the east coast of Dutch Borneo—was reported in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Wednesday communiqué. More than sixty army Liberators unloaded seventy-four bombs on installations in the oil center last Saturday (Borneo time), leaving great fires. Seven of thirty Japanese interceptors were shot down. Three Liberators were lost.

A Navy Liberator hit the Southern Philippines, destroying or damaging seven seaplanes, three bombers and a flying boat at Zamboanga. Conclusion of the naval conference at San Francisco was announced by district headquarters there. No details were given. But the current pattern of Pacific hostilities might indicate that the navy chiefs had under consideration plans connected with the Japanese-fueled invasion of the Philippines. Another possible subject was the carrying of naval hostilities closer to the Nippon homeland from new bases in the Marianas.

Japs March on Foochow

A Japanese Imperial headquarters communiqué, broadcast from Tokyo, said Rising Sun forces landed on the Fukien coast and were driving toward Foochow, last major seaport still held by the Chinese. Japanese press and radio reports, picked up by FCC, said the landings were designed to upset American "plans to land on the China coast from the Pacific and sever our communications with the southern region."

The Chinese high command reported no change on the vital Kwangsi front where strategic Kweilin is the Japanese objective. Fighting raged at Paoting, on the Japanese right flank. Clyde A. Farnsworth, Associated Press war correspondent, reported from Kweilin under date of Oct. 1 that the Japanese were said to be only fourteen miles from the city but that the Chinese well armed with United States war supplies, were confident they would hold this hub of China's southern defenses.

More Supplies Reaching China

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Disclosing that 20,000 tons of supplies are being flown into China monthly, President Roosevelt said today American airmen have performed an amazing feat in getting military equipment into that nation.

Mr. Roosevelt made the remark at his news conference when a reporter asked him to comment on a statement which he said originated in Chungking to the effect that American supplies to China's armies have been pitifully inadequate.

Warrant for Rumely

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter today issued a warrant for the arrest and subsequent removal to Washington, D. C., of Dr. Edward A. Rumely, executive secretary of the committee for constitutional government.

Congress May Probe Staller Hotel Fight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—An investigation of the fistcuffs at the Staller hotel after President Roosevelt addressed the AFL Teamsters Union there Sept. 23 was urged today by Chairman Rankin (D-Miss) of the House World War Veterans committee.

Meanwhile the accounts of two young navy officers who said they constituted one of the battling forces stood as the only official version of the affair. They said their opponents identified themselves as Teamsters Union members.

Earlier, Dr. Sullivan said Smith was weaker.

Bomber Crashes

LANGLEY FIELD, Va., Oct. 3 (AP)—Col. E. A. Lohman, commanding officer of Langley field, announced today that a B-24 assigned to this field had crashed into the Chesapeake bay five miles north of New Point Comfort this morning. None of the bodies of the crew has yet been recovered.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3 (AP)—Cannon fire was heard in Sweden last night as Finnish troops pressed toward German positions in the border village of Vojakkala, six miles north of Torne, the newspaper Aftonbladet reported today.

"Ray of Sunshine" For Al Smith

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Improvement in the condition of Governor Alfred E. Smith was reported tonight by his physician, Dr. Raymond P. Sullivan.

"There is a little ray of sunshine now," he said after an examination, but added that the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee "is still a gravely sick man."

Dr. Sullivan said Smith's fever had abated, a lung congestion had not spread, and that there was improvement in an intestinal disturbance.

Earlier, Dr. Sullivan said Smith was weaker.

Super Bomber Output Greatest of War

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Production of long-range super bombers in September was "the greatest yet in a single month," the War Production Board said today in announcing that total output of all aircraft was 7,598 planes or ninety-eight per cent of schedule.

Total production in August was 7,939 planes.

The actual number of B-29 and B-32 super bombers produced in September was not given because of security reasons. WPB said that despite the record, output of the big planes was "under schedule."

It was announced that the six Allied armies in Western Europe had captured at least 526,084 German prisoners by tonight. Hodges's First army, with 183,827 to its credit, had taken nearly twice as many as Patton's Third army, with 92,600.

The United States Seventh army at the extreme southern end of the front captured Ronchamp, ten miles west of the fortress city of Belfort at the entrance to the Belfort Gap gateway to Germany. Third army troops cleared the last Germans from the forest of Gremecey, some twenty miles east of Nancy.

Peace Steps Should Be Open to Public

GOVERNOR DEWEY has been outspoken in favor of taking the American people into confidence with regard to the formulation of world peace structure. "We cannot meet the problems of peace by any hush-hush, pussy-footed," he firmly declared at Louisville, "the steps by which this great task is to be approached cannot be secret. They must not be devised in obscurity. . . . So long as we are trying to say about it, we shall insist that the American people shall be fully informed of our effort to achieve the peace of the world."

But secrecy, fostered, supported and safeguarded by the Roosevelt administration, obtains now in the preliminary steps being taken to that end. When the Dumbarton Oaks conference passed from its first to its second, or Chinese phase, it was still shrouded in the impenetrable secrecy it maintained. The New York Herald Tribune, discussing this deplorable situation, shows how it is impeding the peace problem in general and calling to command the support of public opinion must have for its successful conclusion.

"Three polite and wholly formal interviews by Secretary Hall, Sir Alexander Cadogan and Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo (which it is improbable that the public even took the trouble to read)," it says, "shed virtually no light either on what had been accomplished with the Russians or on what it is hoped to accomplish with the Chinese. Secretary Hall was again repeating his admirable dictum that the strength of the organization proposed to establish can be no greater than the support given to it by an informed public opinion throughout the world." How it is possible to have an informed public opinion without supplying the public with any information he did not explain.

"Yet that question seems to this newspaper to lie at the core of the state department's platform. In an article on this page on Saturday (r. George Polk, who as a member of the Herald Tribune's Washington Bureau has had the task of trying to inform the public of the proceedings at Dumbarton Oaks and so providing the basis for the success of the work, analyzed the policy of secrecy that seems to lie, as a policy for its own sake, Mr. Hull's domain. The difficulties it imposes on a conscientious reporter, the quite unnecessary and suspicious which it tends to generate, the extent to which results in either public misunderstanding or what is worse public apathy were well illustrated in this one case."

"But the problem reaches much further than Dumbarton Oaks. In all its far-flung negotiations—in all a handling of the French question through the pre-invasion days, in its relations with Italy, in its relations with the smaller powers, in the matter of the postwar treatment of Germany—the State department has consistently labored under as paralyzing a fear of publicity and public participation in its activities as that which once assailed our military and naval leaders. And the results have been uniformly bad."

"Secrecy is one necessary tool in the conduct of difficult international negotiation. Publicity is neither, and in a democratic country hoping to make that kind of democratic peace which will require the world-wide support of informed opinion, it is by far the more important. The panic light into 'no comment' on every conceivable occasion does not really keep matters secret for any great length of time. Sooner or later there are always 'leaks.' It simply insures that the leaks will come in the most damaging way, that the facts will be exposed to rumor and gossip, that policies which could succeed if authoritatively explained get lost in a mist of misrepresentation, misunderstanding and popular confusion which is rarely hindering rather than helping the development of American policy both abroad and at home."

All of this is quite to the point. It emphasizes concretely the position taken by Governor Dewey for that in other years was a shibboleth of Democratic party concept of foreign affairs, namely, "open overalls openly arrived at," now stipulated by the Roosevelt administration.

even Reasons or a Change

SPEAKING his mind plainly, Robert Moses, commissioner of parks, public works and planning for New York city and state, discusses the current political campaign under the title "Why I Oppose the Fourth Term" in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

If he speaks "without bitterness, meanness or exaggeration" after dismissing some of the Republican criticisms against President Mr. Roosevelt as trivial and inconsequential, Moses cites seven reasons why he is opposed to a fourth term:

1. Because Mr. Roosevelt "has almost ruined the federal judicial system. While the supreme court is of split on strictly political or sectional lines, its bickering, personal differences, reversals and conflicting opinions have upset precedents and confused courts and lawyers throughout the country, and have brought the reputation of the court to be the lowest point in a hundred years."

2. Because Mr. Roosevelt is "destroying the very idea of the union of states. The New Deal has repudiated states' rights. It has established a one-man federal autocracy which would have horrified both Jefferson and Hamilton."

3. Because Mr. Roosevelt has "increased the conflict between the executive and Congress to a degree at which we are approaching chaos in legislation."

4. Because Mr. Roosevelt has "promoted factionalism, stimulated minorities, appealed to class prejudice and divided our people."

5. Because Mr. Roosevelt's government is one of "impulse and improvising; a government which is constantly creating new bureaus and agencies instead of boldly reorganizing cabinet offices, one which is controlled by an administrative policy other than expedience."

6. Because of Mr. Roosevelt's "fluctuating foreign policies, which are always veiled in rhetoric, gestures and smooth talk. No one knows Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy, and it would be dated in forty-eight hours if we knew it."

7. Because "I have no confidence either in his intention or in his ability to convert war to peace production, to provide full employment and to guarantee a reasonably swift transition from prodigious government spending to reduced budgets and taxes."

Seven persuasive reasons, indeed, because every one is pregnant with meaning as to the future welfare of this country and its individual citizens. No one should make up his or her mind on how to vote at the November election without weighing each one of them very carefully.

Sea Warfare Not In Japs' Book

DEVELOPMENTS in the Philippines sector have made it clear that the Japanese navy will not fight the American navy until Admiral Nimitz's ships sail into Japanese home waters for the inevitable frontal attack. It is not that the Japanese lack the will for a fanatical sea fight. It is because there is no such thing as sea warfare in the Japanese book of strategy.

Historians can trace Japanese strategy as far back as the Sixth century to demonstrate that the Japanese looked upon sea vessels as a means of transport and not as battle craft.

Curiously, the term "beachhead" appeared in Japanese history as early as 1597. In this respect, it is interesting to note that the Japanese even then regarded warships as the protective fleet around the troops which were delivering men to establish the beachhead.

American and British navy men figure always in terms of "calculated risk." Anglo-American naval strategy is a brilliant combination of courage, daring and imagination and has long been so. The history books are filled with many an example of heroics on the sea.

But not so with the Japanese. There is no such thing in their admirals' training. Theirs is rather a protective squadron theme with the only waters in which battle can be offered being the "bottle sea area" surrounding Japan proper.

It was so in the Russo-Japanese war. It probably will be so in this war. The Japanese navy will avoid any direct fight until the last moment. Those Japanese admirals who have had the misfortune to get in the way of the American navy and have managed to flee must certainly be despairing about the fight that is to come some other day.

When all promised reconversion plans have been put into effect, will it be proper to ask the clerk: "Don't you know there is a peace on?"

Giant transport planes of the future will be as luxurious as fine hotels, we read. The air castle, it seems, may become a reality.

One of the chief indoor sports of Allied statesmen these days is sitting around waiting for Stalin to speak his mind.

The Crowd Is Wiser Than the Man

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I sat in an automobile at a busy corner, watching the crowd go by—on foot and in machines, east and west and north and south—and saw something worth remembering.

Worth my remembering, anyway.

It was raining and the traffic was heavy. It seemed to me that half the town was going past that corner.

But traffic was moving with surprising smoothness as far as my non-professional eye could see. There were stop and go signs at that corner and the human beings, walking or driving, were obeying them.

If an occasional rugged individualist didn't, he was hunked at, shouted at, scowled at—and I have observed that this treatment, particularly when applied to men but not so particularly with respect to women, was very effective.

There were no traffic jams, or only little ones, and they did not take long to be straightened out.

So I sat there, half-reading a magazine and half-admiring the willingness of the human crowd to solve its problems.

Then a young traffic officer came along. Fine looking. Alert. Intelligent. Capable in appearance. Courteously authoritative. . . . And he took over.

He switched off the automatic signaling device and worked the stop-and-go mechanism manually. And do you know what happened?

Well, in less than five minutes that traffic was in a worse snarl than that cat can make with a ball of yarn.

The "stop" would be on for three minutes; then the "go" would work for two minutes; the "stop" for four minutes; the "go" for one minute.

He whistled and he waved his arms. He directed that traffic as slavishly as Mr. Stokowski before an orchestra. . . . And he MESSED IT UP!

In ten minutes all the traffic in town seemed to be coagulated at that corner and was backed for more than a block in four directions. A street car jammed across the street stopped all movement.

What a mess! . . . He didn't lose his temper. He was an officer and a gentleman. Hardly anybody booed, honked or scowled. You see, no one who was on the scene knew how much better conditions had been before he took over. Nobody but me. Not even the officer.

Well, I'm not saying traffic officers are unnecessary. I've been in traffic jams that made me pray for official help. All I'm saying is that on THIS rainy afternoon, at THIS corner, everything was lovely until somebody decided the traffic required direction. . . . And if a moral is needed, I have it: when the crowd is let alone it is almost always wiser than any individual.

WHO SAYS THE NEW DEAL CAN'T SUPPLY JOBS?

Important Aid Given Roosevelt in 1933 To Better Economic Status Is Recalled

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—There is one man who must be getting a good deal of satisfaction, if not vindication, out of the presidential campaign. That is Herbert Hoover, who undoubtedly is reading with avid interest that the argument of experience in the presidency is important.

Mr. Hoover probably is arching his eyebrows as he reads that, in order to be a good president, a chief executive should have occupied the White House at least four years and maybe more. It will be recalled that Mr. Hoover labored faithfully to transmit to President-elect Roosevelt information concerning the basic preparations that had been made for the London Economic Conference of 1933. It will be recalled also that Mr. Roosevelt, disregarding the advice of Secretary Hull, suddenly torpedoed the conference in June, 1933—a step which many internationally-minded persons think was the beginning of the economic collapse of Europe that gave Hitler his chance to rise in power.

Back in 1933 Mr. Roosevelt had had little experience in national affairs, having devoted himself primarily to the office of governor of the state of New York for four years—an office which is an excellent training place for the presidency. Governor Dewey, who has served nearly three years in Albany, too, will doubtless concur in that appraisal.

Republican Plans Worked Out The argument of experience did not, however, impress the voters in November, 1932, though the period was a very critical one in American history. A world-wide depression, which began with the failure of the big bank in Austria, and which was alleviated somewhat by the moratorium on war debts, produced a crisis in this country of major proportions.

It is a matter of record that the Treasury department, under the Hoover administration, prepared the steps necessary for the closing of the banks early in 1933, and it was under Secretary Arthur W. Mellon that the Treasury was inaugurated after Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated and did most of the banking holiday, for which, incidentally, the experience argument is a fallacious one. Mr. Hoover undoubtedly knew more about the presidency by the beginning of 1933 than he knew when he took office in 1929. He was one of the ablest administrators but poorest politicians ever to set in the White House.

He was defeated for a second term largely because of unemployment and the depression. Experience did not count then but the protest vote did.

History could repeat itself this year if the protest vote outweighed the experience argument. Republicans in 1936 and 1940 were not able to mobilize a sufficiently big protest vote to defeat Mr. Roosevelt, but they are counting on such a protest vote this time. Anyway, Mr. Hoover can look on objectively and smile when the very experience argument that should have given him another term in a crisis is being used as an argument for a fourth term.

He can smile, too, if Governor Dewey should be elected because, if that event occurs, he will doubtless feel it was not because of the Republican nominee's knowledge of national affairs, but because of the nation's protest against the excesses of the new deal.

November Vote Turnout Estimated At 39,500,000 on Present Survey

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
 Director, American Institution of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 3.—Evidence available at this stage of the political campaign points to a likely turnout of 39,500,000 civilian voters in the presidential election, not including ballots from the armed forces.

This represents a sharp drop from the 1940 election, when nearly 50,000,000 people went to the polls. The comparatively low anticipated turnout in November is a factor which many Democrats will look upon with dismay. A light turnout generally helps the Republicans and hurts the Democrats, because it usually means fewer workers and low-income voters going to the polls. Analysis of the 1942 elections shows that a substantial part of the gain in seats made by the Republicans in the House of Representatives was owing to the light turnout.

Hence it is easy to see why the Democrats, faced with the possibility of a low turnout this year, are redoubling their efforts to get out the vote.

In arriving at the present estimate for turnout several things were taken into account, principally the Philadelphia voting registration which closed September 18, the turnout in the recent state and local elections in Maine, and the degree of voting in primaries that have been held throughout the country. All these things taken together would indicate that 39,500,000 is a reasonably accurate estimate at this stage in the campaign. The Institute will make new estimates as further data become available from registrations and from surveys indicating degree of interest in the presidential campaign.

A civilian turnout of 39,500,000 would be phenomenally low for a presidential year in terms of the total number of potential voters.

According to a recent report by the Bureau of the Census, there

TURNOUT IN PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS

The trend line shows the number of voters, in millions, who cast ballots in recent presidential elections. The figure for 1944 is an estimate made by the Gallup Poll as of this stage in the political campaign.

were 88,600,000 "potential voters"—men and women 21 years old or over—as of January 1, 1944. This includes all men over 21 in the armed forces.

The Census Bureau estimated that if voting this year were in the same ratio as the 1940 presidential election, the total turnout in November would be 55,300,000 with the servicemen included. This ratio would mean 50,300,000 with the servicemen excluded.

One has only to compare this latter figure of 50,300,000 potential civilian votes at the 1940 ratio, with the 39,500,000 actually anticipated, to see the decline in turnout which the political parties face today.

The following table shows how the estimated 39,500,000 turnout compares with the vote cast in other recent presidential elections.

It would be the lightest vote for president since 1928.

1928	36,800,000
1932	39,800,000
1936	49,800,000
1940	45,600,000
1944 (est.)	39,500,000

* "Citizens only."
 The size of the servicemen's vote can only be a matter of speculation at this time. Later evidence, chiefly the number of requests from the armed forces for ballots, should shed further light on the situation.

Aachen and Metz Appear Doomed, Simpson Says

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Twin outer bastions of the Nazi Siegfried line, Aachen and Metz, appear doomed as American First and Third armies close in on them, bent on averting a winter stalemate in the west.

Allied official advices gave little information as to the battle for either place but front line dispatches left little doubt that both were tottering under the concerted fire of American guns and bombs and lunging infantry thrusts.

Collapse of either or both would go far toward throwing the foe back behind the Rhine itself in the center of the 500-mile western front.

It would open the road for Allied deployment on the left bank of the Rhine itself to regain mobility in action and bring the weight of American tank and mechanized superiority again into play.

North of Aachen the upper jaw of a First army vise was virtually abreast of its southern mate, which previously had driven into Stolberg and beyond. Seizure of Ueckel and Rimberg castle beyond the Dutch border in Germany cut athwart the direct northern escape route for the partially encircled enemy garrison in Aachen.

The main highways and rail routes out of Aachen lead north-easterly to the Rhine, however, and lower jaws of the First army pincers. All are in cross-fire range of American field guns.

The fury of German resistance establishes the importance of Aachen to enemy hopes on holding off the Allied advance to the Rhine until winter bogs down the western front. It may take time and bitter fighting to complete its investment; but general Hodges's troops are within sight of their first objective within two days of their jump off.

Patton's Third army battering at the Metz fortress on the Moselle is engaged in the deadly business of frontal attack. The Metz-Thionville canyon of the river has proved a difficult barrier in Patton's path. Until it is cleared the Lorraine gateway to the Saar and the upper Rhine cannot well be pried open for his tank columns. But once Metz is taken, Patton may find it possible to return on a limited scale to the tactics that carried him so swiftly across France.

An organ stop is not a key, but a rank of pipes, each sounding one note.

"What Did You Do In The War Daddy?"

"Well, son, I didn't get any medals but I'm not ashamed of what I did. You see, each year we used to get a number of new buses and retire some old timers. But the war ended that and we old fellows had to keep going. We weren't so spry any longer. And to make it worse, it was darned near impossible to get us new parts when we broke down. Tires were a problem too, and lack of them kept a lot of us off the road at times. Then to save rubber, they cut our speed so that it took five of us to do the work four used to do. Of course, we hauled some troops and carried a lot of men to camp or home on furlough. And on regular runs, we were often packed to the roof. It wasn't such fine service, I know—not the kind we liked to give or had been used to giving. In fact, at times the only pre-war standards we could claim we fully maintained were our safety requirements. Those were never relaxed. But our war job was to move people somehow, and by gum, we did it."

Sgt. J. R. Murphy, Of Mt. Savage, Is Declared Dead

Tail Gunner on B-27 Bomber Has Been Missing since July 28, 1943

By MISS CATHERINE O'ROURKE

MT. SAVAGE, Oct. 3.—Staff Sgt. James R. Murphy has been officially declared dead by the United States War Department, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Murphy, S-Sgt. Murphy had been listed as "missing in action" since July 28, 1943.

The B-27 Bomber, on which S-Sgt. Murphy was tail gunner, had completed a mission over Ochsersleben, Germany, and was returned to the base in England when it encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire over Helligoland, according to a letter written to Mr. and Mrs. Murphy by the chaplain of the outfit. Another member in the squadron was hit by the anti-aircraft fire and was killed in mid-air with another bomber of the same squadron. The plane came down in the North Sea off the north west coast of Germany, according to the chaplain's letter. None of the crew were recovered.

S-Sgt. Murphy enlisted in the army October 7, 1942, and received his basic training at Ft. Belvoir, Mo. He was assigned to the 488th Central Postal Directory, Texas, and graduated as an aerial gunner, December 14, 1942. He completed the aircraft armorer's course of the United States Army Air Force Technical School at Denver, Colorado, February 20, 1943. He was then stationed at army air bases at Okla. Wash., Calif., Bank, Mont., and Kearney, Neb. He left for overseas in June 1943.

The War Department has set July 28, 1944, as the official date of Sgt. Murphy's death, the day following the expiration of twelve months in the "missing in action" classification.

Besides his parents, S-Sgt. Murphy is survived by one sister, Mrs. Edward McCray, Cumberland; three brothers, Corporal W. DeLass Murphy, serving with the army medical corps in France, and Duane and Reddie Murphy, at home; and a grandfather, William E. Durst, wanton, Md.

Announcement Marriage

Miss Mary Margaret Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, and Sgt. Herman Keel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Keel, Cumberland, were married September 14 at Grace Baptist church, Cumberland.

The Rev. Randolph Keefe, Jr., officiated at the ceremony. Misses Smith and Corp. Robert Gets, Ellersburg, Pa., were the attendants.

The bride is employed at the McCarty store, Cumberland, and Sgt. Keel is stationed at Camp Pickett, Va.

Water Lines At Westernport Will Be Checked

House-to-house Inspection by Town Commissioners

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, Oct. 3.—It was decided at the meeting of Mayor John Barnard and commissioners of Westernport last night that a house-to-house inspection be made for water leaks. Property owners where leaks are found will be notified and if such repairs are not made in due time, the water will be shut off until they are. Arthur Fazenbaker, water superintendent suggested this inspection be made.

A hose expander for use in repairing a hose was authorized to be purchased by the Potomac Fire Company No. 2, and the town would pay for it. Chief Irvin Marsh explained that this tool would save money.

The town agreed to see if the rear of the room occupied by Lee Franklin in the city building could be used as a storage room for the fire company and a warehouse for the town.

The commissioners ordered that a water line be extended 150 feet so as to give Mrs. Allen Martin water on the Stoney Run road.

Charles Feight, Green's addition, requested a street light be placed about seventy-five feet from his home. It was ordered that the Potomac Edison Company be notified to do the work as soon as the material is available.

Henry MacCrae Dies At Age of 68

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3—(P)—The movies have lost the man who set the pace for serials. Henry MacCrae, who died last night at the age of 68, had devoted nearly all of his career to manufacturing chapter plays. For more than thirty years he figured out a cinema thrill a week. And, as youngsters became more sophisticated, so did MacCrae's thrills. MacCrae had an exact formula, a formula that was so sure fire that money did one of his serials lose. It was a formula so certain that it became standard for the industry. He figured it out way back in the days of Eddie Polo and Marie Walcamp and Paul Panzer and stayed with it. An English penny is equal in value to about twice as much as an American penny.

Jackie Cooper Freed In Morals Case

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 3 (P)—Jackie Cooper, who became a navy V-12 trainee at the University of Notre Dame shortly after starring in a morals picture, "Where Are Your Children?", was acquitted today of contributing to the delinquency of two young South Bend girls.

In the course of the two-day trial behind closed doors last week, Zasu Pitts, stage and screen comedienne, appeared as a character witness for Cooper.

Carolina Teams Bid for Gridiron Coaching Talent

University's Rival Units Will Pay Mentors Up to $12,000

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 3 (AP) — Two rival units of the University of North Carolina stood ready today to bid higher than ever for high-powered coaching talent in preparation for whatever football wars may come.

Both the original unit at Chapel Hill, home of the university Tar Heels, and the branch here, North Carolina State college, laid out the Wolfpack, were authorized by the trustees last night to pay up to $12,000 for head coaches. The reported limit heretofore has been $8,000 at Chapel Hill and $6,500 at N. C. State.

Athletic authorities were silent today about what plans they might have for big-time competition but the trustees in voting the increased salary limit said it was done to make possible the hiring of a man who "would adequately perform the duties needed at the University of North Carolina," and at State.

By this action, the two North Carolina colleges lined up with another member of the Southern Conference in indicating plans for extensive postwar activity. Maryland had previously announced plans for building a football stadium after the war to seat 50,000, and capable of expansion to 80,000 or 90,000.

Setting of the maximum at $12,000 recalled reports that Carl Snavely, who went to Cornell after a successful tenure at Carolina, had demanded that amount a few months ago when a movement was launched seeking his return. Reached at Ithaca, Snavely would make no statement about the possibility of his coming back but street-corner talk here and in Chapel Hill insisted he was not yet out of the picture.

President Frank P. Graham, of the university, who unsuccessfully fathered a plan to de-emphasize football a few years ago, was described as opposing the paying of a coach more than a regular department head. Graham's salary is $8,250.

Pigs and chickens were introduced in the South Sea Islands by emigrants from Asia.

Stirnweiss Wins Slugging Honors

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP) — A year ago last spring, a stocky youth with only three years of organized baseball behind him crossed the river from Newark and rapped on the door of the New York Yankees clubhouse.

Today, at the end of his first year as a regular in the big time, final official figures of the American League show him to be the loop's most powerful offensive player.

He is George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss, a native New Yorker who stepped in this year to fill that important second base spot vacated by stellar Joe Gordon.

He topped the league in runs, with 125; in hits, 205; in stolen bases, fifty-five and tied with his teammate, Johnny Lindell, for most trips, six with sixteen. Besides, he batted at a .319 clip—fourth best—in 154 games, the only player among the leaders who was in every game of the season.

Only two other American League stars led the circuit in more than one department—Lou Boudreau, Cleveland manager, in hitting and doubles, and Hal Newhouser, Detroit, in pitching and strikeouts.

Lions Will Catch Navy on Rebound

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 3 (AP) — Coach Bob Higgins, of the Penn State football team, wishes that North Carolina pre-flight hadn't been so rough on Navy last Saturday.

"A Navy victory was what we needed," he said today. "To do any thing against the Middles. Now, we'll catch them on the rebound—and you know what that means."

Penn State travels to Annapolis Saturday to meet Navy, which suffered a 21-14 defeat at the hands of the pre-flighters, while the State College Lions were impressive in their 58-0 win over Muhlenberg.

"Of course I like the way we looked," Higgins said. "There were the usual first-game mistakes, and our freshmen were none too steady, but the performance was encouraging."

But now, think of the mood Navy will be in when we hit Annapolis."

Navy was pressed to beat Penn State last year, 14-6, in a rainstorm. The Nittany Lions and Middles have played twenty games in their series that began in 1894, with Navy winning eleven, Penn State seven, with two ties.

Mauriello and Oma Meel Again Nov. 3

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP) — Tami Mauriello, New York heavyweight, and Lee Oma, of Detroit, were rematched today for a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden the night of November 3.

The Sept. 22 meeting, which Mauriello won by a knockout in the eighth round, ranks as the best heavyweight bout in the Garden in more than a year.

Thomas Will Meel Bettina October 16

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 (AP) — Saint Thomas, of New York, a follower of Father Divine, will meet Mello Bettina, former light-heavyweight champion at Convention hall Oct. 16. Promoter Herman Taylor announced today.

Thomas sprang the season's upset in his last ring appearance by defeating Gus Dorazio, Philadelphia, in four rounds at Gotham.

ORIOLES DEFEAT BEARS, SEND SERIES TO LIMIT

NEWARK, Sept. 3—The Baltimore Orioles, their backs to the wall, came through with a 5-3 victory over the Newark Bears tonight to even their International League Governor's Cup series at three victories apiece.

The seventh and deciding game will be played tomorrow night at 8:30 at the Baltimore stadium.

Stan Benjamin's homer with the bases loaded, followed by Blas Monaco's four-ply blow in the fifth inning, gave the Orioles tonight's scrap.

Midget Court Loop Will Be Discussed

Formation of a Midget League for basketball will be discussed at a meeting tonight at 7 o'clock at No. 1 North Liberty street. During the summer, the circuit conducted a baseball circuit.

Sportsmen To Ask Allegany Hospital Removal of Nazis Class of Nurses From Green Ridge Given Diplomas

Petition Is Circulated at Frostburg Meeting; LeCompte Speaks

FROSTBURG, Oct. 3.—A petition addressed to Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor and asking that German prisoners of war be removed from the Green Ridge state forest because their presence there caused State Forester Joseph F. Kaylor to close the area to hunting was circulated for signatures at the meeting of the Allegany - Garrett County Sportsmen's Association held in the Gunter hotel here tonight.

Principal speaker at the meeting was R. Lee LeCompte, state game warden, who feuded with Kaylor over closing the forest area, and he told the group that his trip originally was planned for the purpose of meeting Kaylor but turned out to be an inspection trip of Allegany and Garrett counties by himself and members of the Maryland Inland Game and Fish Commission.

No Boundary Settlement
LeCompte declared that Kaylor was authorized by John M. Nelson, chairman of the state forestry board, to close 10,000 acres of the Green Ridge forest and confine German prisoners to that area, the remaining 20,000 acres to be left open for hunting.

He added, however, that there has been no settlement yet as to the boundary between the open and closed areas inasmuch as no proclamation has been issued by the state board of forestry.

Kaylor Unable To Attend
The state game warden told members and guests of the association that he requested Kaylor to meet him in Allegany county this week to fix the definite boundary line under the agreement, but that Kaylor informed him last week he could not arrange to attend such a conference, stating that his "men would attend to the matter."

The petition addressed to the governor stated:
"The undersigned citizens of Allegany county, Md., request that owing to the fact that 30,000 acres of the best hunting territory in the state of Maryland have been closed to hunting by the state forester due to the presence of German prisoners of war working in part of that area, that the prisoners be removed from Allegany county."

Minor Wife Says Husband Beat Her, Sues for Divorce

Mrs. Marie Fairgrieve Accuses Mate of Failing To Support Her

Charging her husband with beating her and treating her with great cruelty, Marie Jane Fairgrieve, a minor, through her father and next friend, Albert Broadwater, filed suit in circuit court yesterday for a partial divorce from Dwayne Fairgrieve.

The couple were married December 24, 1943, according to the bill of complaint, and Mrs. Fairgrieve accuses her husband of assaulting her on different occasions and at one time beating her until her life was despaired of and she was compelled to return to the home of her parents.

After living apart about a month, Mrs. Fairgrieve states, her husband persuaded her to return and live with him at his parents' home at Moscow and promised he would not molest her.

She charges, however, that he disregarded his promises and again beat her on September 2 and she returned once more to her home. His conduct, she says, constitutes constructive abandonment.

Fairgrieve, his wife declares, failed to support her properly for a long period of time and since the birth of their son has failed to provide for the necessities of life.

Mrs. Fairgrieve asks custody of the child and in a court order signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster, Fairgrieve is ordered to pay $50 monthly as alimony during the litigation. He also is ordered to show cause before October 21 why he should not be restrained from molesting his wife. Mrs. Fairgrieve is represented by Ester C. Kelley.

Suit for divorce from Orle Stein was filed in court yesterday by Mrs. Josephine Stein. She asks custody of their daughter. Judge Huster ordered Stein to pay his wife $15 weekly alimony pending a decision. Mrs. Stein is represented by Edward J. Ryan.

Bill of complaint were filed yesterday by Mrs. Virginia M. Buchanan against Ralph Edward Buchanan, and by Mrs. Agnes H. Johns against Victor Johns.

The purpose of the firm, according to the certificate, is to carry on a general real estate business.

Three selections, "Mary Queen of Peace," "Lady of Good Council" and "Good Night Sweet Jesus" were sung by the nurses choir under the direction of Miss Dorothy Willison, with Sister Aquinette at the organ.

Yesterday the Sisters of Charity at the hospital received a letter from Governor Herbert R. The contract calls for the paving with blacktop the Bedford road from the end of the brick pavement on Bedford street to the intersection of Frederick street at the crossroads on Route No. 220, just beyond the city limits, a distance of approximately one mile.

USES Placements In September Set Record for Year

Local Jobs Found for 852; Appeal Made to Women Willing to Work

Jobs were found for 852 persons in local industries during the month of September by the Cumberland office of the United States Employment Service, the highest number for a single month this year, according to Patrick J. Carroll, manager.

The previous high for placements in a single month was 826 in May.

Carroll issued an appeal to the women of Allegany county, who are able and willing to work and who are between the ages of eighteen and forty.

"There is a very definite need for their services to take jobs that were made vacant because of more than 9,000 men and women from Allegany county who are doing a job for use in the services of our country," Carroll said.

"To women who are willing to work, it may mean the saving of the job for their husband, brother or sweetheart and it will help the industries to maintain their employment and production and relieve the necessity of doing away with jobs that may not start again because the work may be farmed to some other plant, thereby discontinuing the job entirely, leaving no job for the veteran to return to when he does come home."

In conclusion Carroll urged women to do their part for a victorious ending of the war.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY WILL BUY RECORD KIT

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion voted to buy one kit of records for the men and women in service overseas, at the meeting last evening at the home. The kit which costs $15 contains forty-eight records making ninety-six selections.

Mrs. John R. Kelly presided and explained that old records are not good anymore as they have no commercial value and so the American Legion and Auxiliary is sponsoring the drive to raise $125,000 which is needed to augment the $25,000 donated by the national organization of the legion and the additional $11,000 advanced by the Fighting Men Incorporated.

Final plans were also made for the annual banquet to be held November 21 at the Legion home in honor of the department officers after which the installation of the local officers will be held.

Mrs. Harry Vogel was appointed general chairman of arrangements and will be assisted by Mrs. Hyle Walker, Mrs. James Spearman, Mrs. Pauline Smith and Mrs. Kelly. Ellis Haller will be in charge of the banquet arrangements.

Among the honor guests will be Mrs. Norman E. Horn, department president; Mrs. Helen Johnson, secretary; Mrs. Warren Boulden, national executive committee woman; Mrs. J. Bailey Mercer, parliamentarian; Mrs. J. Tom Long, historian; Mrs. Pearl Eberly, district vice president; and Mrs. Russell Paupe, departmental chapeau of the Eight and Forty. Mrs. Eberly will be in charge of the installation ceremony.

Bids were opened yesterday at the Baltimore office of the commission and the low figure was $16,800.

Robertson said the work of improving the road will be started in about ten days.

Two men booked as Russell Dove, Walton hotel, and Lawrence Elwood, Flintstone, will be given hearings this morning on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct. They were arrested by Officer C. W. Thompson last evening at 11:23 o'clock after a disturbance on Front street.

William L. Sherman and Mrs. Camille J. Sherman, of the Washington and Lee apartments, and Muriel Fisher, 812 Camden avenue, are named as incorporators of three Pennsylvania corporations for which certificates of incorporation were filed for record yesterday in the office of the clerk of circuit court.

The firms, known as Potter County Hardwoods, Incorporated, the Mahoning Corporation and the Beryl Corporation, each have authorized capital stock of $100,000.

John Sherry and the other two were found outside debating whether or not to give up, police said.

The boys told Treiber they took the car in Uniontown early Monday evening and drove the Buick sedan here.

When the local man reached the police station he blew the car horn to summon police. A few minutes later the boys became frightened, jumped out of the car and escaped.

Shortly before midnight, one of the boys surrendered to Desk Sgt. John Sherry and the other two were found outside debating whether or not to give up, police said.

Secret Payments Charge Is Brought Against Celanese

Federal Trade Commission Says Corporation Violated Clayton Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission announced today it had issued a complaint against the Celanese Corporation of America, New York, charging secret payments during the last eight years to favored firms selling "Celanese" garments while withholding the same benefits from their competitors.

The action charges violations of provisions of the Clayton Act.

The corporation, it was alleged, contributed to advertising and promotional expenses of the recipient manufacturers and retailers, classifying its customers "on the basis of 'prestige' such customers enjoy in the women's dress and women's wearing apparel industries."
